

ABSTRACT

A system, method and software application for generating, implementing and managing a multi-activity marketing plan are described. Such a marketing campaign can include various campaigns, programs and tactics interrelated in a tree-like structure. One method of the present invention includes a software application that permits a user to build and manage a marketing plan through the use of marketing objects.

FILED